DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 9, 10, 16, and 17 objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form. The above claims merely site that the cavity is made with walls that conform to the shape of the floating object. This limitation is recited in lines 3 and 4 of claim 1 and lines 5-7 of claim 15.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:
The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
3. Claims 9, 10, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
 - a. Claims 9 and 10, line 2, recite "a preexisting body". The claim is considered vague and confusing because it is unclear if applicant is referring to the body mentioned in line 1 of claim 1 or a new and separate body. It is suggested that line 1 be changed to read --the preexisting body--.
 - b. Claim 16, line 1, recites "a preexisting body". The claim is considered vague and confusing because it is unclear if applicant is referring to the body mentioned in line 3 of claim 15 or a new and separate body. It is suggested that line 1 be changed to read --the preexisting body--.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Art Unit: 3672

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

5. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention lacks patentable utility. All of the above claims are directed toward the Applicant's revised buoyancy law. Laws of nature, such as Archimedes' Principle (see Elementary Fluid Mechanics, pages 64 and 65 and Archimedes' Principle), are not considered statutory subject matter thus are not patentable. Further, any new discoveries, such as a new law of nature, are considered "manifestations of...nature, free to all men and reserved exclusively to none." (See MPEP 2105) However, the Applicant's revised law is considered a violation of the established natural law of buoyancy and such violations of laws of nature have been upheld by the Federal Courts as not patentable.

Rejections under 35 U.S.C. 101 have been rarely sustained by Federal courts. Generally speaking, in these rare cases, the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection was sustained either because the applicant failed to disclose any utility for the invention or asserted a utility that could only be true if it violated a scientific principle, such as the second law of thermodynamics, or a law of nature, or was wholly inconsistent with contemporary knowledge in the art. In re Gazave, 379 F.2d 973, 978, 154 USPQ 92, 96 (CCPA 1967). (MPEP 2107.01)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

7. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Omachi and the following six pictures.

⁵ www.dgolds.com/Panama/ThroughTheLocksWithAPanamaxShip.htm

Omachi and the above six pictures disclose a cavity that is made to hold liquid. The walls of the body are formed so they correspond to the shape of a body within the cavity. This includes horizontal walls that are closely spaced to the horizontal walls of the body and vertical walls that are closely spaced to the vertical walls of the body. The walls of the cavity and the body are also slightly sloped to further reduce the space between the walls.

Though not specifically disclosed or taught, the limitation that the liquid within the cavity exerting an upward force on the body that is greater than the weight of the liquid that it displaces and an equal to a volume of liquid that had the same volume as the object or that portion that is immersed is considered an inherent trait of the above canals and locks.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments filed 12 July 2001 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's arguments that the fact that the examiner thinks the claimed invention is a violation of a natural law does not negate the function of the invention but indicates that there is no prior art because it is considered contrary to established principles the examiner would like to note that natural laws and established principles are considered the same thing. The examiner would also like to repeat that anything that is contrary to natural laws or established principles are not patentable. Further, the prior art cited above teaches the device recited in the claims and if the applicant considers the claimed invention to be "a correction of established law" then the above devices would inherently demonstrate that same buoyancy characteristics as those recited in the claims.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Encyclopedia Britannica, "Canals and Inland Waterways: Locks", discloses many characteristics and dimensions of locks and canals.
